The Market Tea Room Adds Charm to Farmers Market

By Marsha Hewitt Editor SC Market Bulletin

One of the latest and best additions to the State Famers Market is The Market Tea Room, a delightful lounge area where folks can enjoy a traditional tea service. In addition to the full breakfast and lunch offered at the already successful Market Restaurant, the tea room adds another dimension to the West Columbia site.

Despite its relatively new status, The Market Tea Room has a homey, comfortable feel. People wander in, look at a variety of South Carolina foods and crafts, chat with the staff, and order tea. But not just a glass of ordinary iced tea—pots of specialty and flavored teas, gourmet iced teas and coffees, scones and other sweets are available all day.

Customers can choose Élevenses, a traditional mid-morning tea break, or afternoon tea (both of which require reservations) or cream tea (served any time). Although visitors might be a tad confused at first, the staff is so friendly and helpful that customers immediately feel welcome.

The Tea Room serves as an anteroom to The Market Restaurant, so customers can decide where they want to eat. Yes, they can order a full meal from the restaurant and dine in the tea room if they choose. Or they can go straight through to the well-established Market Restaurant for their favorite Fresh from the Menu selections.

Both establishments are owned by Dupre Catering and Events Co. Partners Dupre and Bobby Percival are a father and son combination well known in food circles for their fresh, delicious, and innovative food. They also have a food truck and do extensive catering.

"This is the extension of everything www.facebook.com/marketteard live done," Dupre said, gesturing at the TheMarketTeaRoom@gmail.com.

well-appointed room. Often found sitting at one of the tables, he welcomes guests and explains their dining options.

Recently reviewed as one of the most charming tea rooms in the state, The Market Tea Room is described by manager Jennifer Gerdes as "quaint and joyful." Not only does she offer a large selection of specialty teas, from black to green to herbal, she also makes scones fresh daily from her own recipe.

Afternoon tea is a fun event. Jennifer sets the tables with fine vintage china and has a starter tea ready for guests. The food is beautifully presented on a three-tiered stand, with sandwiches on the bottom, scones in the middle, and sweets and fruit on top.

middle, and sweets and fruit on top.

"The menu changes weekly," she said, explaining that she uses fresh, seasonal food items. The scone selection might include orange-cranberry, lemon-blueberry, vanilla cream or mixed berry. Sandwiches vary from honey cucumber dill to walnut chicken salad to peach pepper ginger. The sweets feature her signature petit fours filled with local jams plus a variety of homemade cookies and fresh fruits.

"You won't leave hungry," she smiled, adding that she refills the plates repeatedly.

The tea room and the restaurant complement each other. "One woman told me her husband agreed to come for tea if he could get a cheeseburger from the restaurant," Jennifer said.

"We want this to be fun and accessible," she said. "People can bring a laptop or book and just relax with a cup of tea." As a weekly treat, pianist John McCullough plays the piano on Thursdays during lunch.

The Market Restaurant is open from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. daily. The Market Tea Room is open until 4 p.m. and by reservation for special events. For more information go www.facebook.com/markettearoom or email TheMarketTeaRoom@gmail.com.

On the Road Again

Willie Nelson had nothing on me in the month of June.

When I think of the start of summer in South Carolina, several things come to mind. Our famous Southern heat, tasty barbecues, and of course, fresh Certified South Carolina produce definitely top the list. Summer is also a time for traveling, and that is no exception here at the Department of Agriculture.

At the beginning of June, several members of my staff and I traveled to Nashville for a meeting of the Southern Association of State Departments of Agriculture (SASDA). This is always a great opportunity to catch up and share with people from other states in our region who are facing similar challenges in agriculture. Topics on the agenda included water management, solar farms, and disaster relief. There was a great presentation on agricultural entrepreneurship, something that we're looking at closely here at the Department. While we were there, Nashville's hockey team was in the NHL finals, so the town was an exciting place to be.

From Nashville, I hopped on a plane for a quick trip to Washington, D.C. where I had the privilege to participate in the White House Infrastructure Summit. There I joined governors, mayors, and representatives from tribal nations to discuss rural infrastructure and regulatory reform.

On the Road Again

We discussed how to improve infrastructure and leverage resources to be most effective in rural America. Cutting down on red tape and maintaining manageable, but not burdensome, regulations is key. It's always a pleasure to visit and work with my friend Secretary Sonny Perdue, and I enjoyed the chance to exchange a few words with President Trump. During my trip I was also able to visit with former SC Congressman Mick Mulvaney, who is now Director of the Office of Management and Budget for the

Towards the end of June, I drove down to Savannah for a North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) discussion with Secretary Perdue and the Canadian and Mexican ministers of agriculture. I had more in common with the Canadian minister of agriculture than you may think---we are both dairy farmers, but they could tell us apart by our Fortunately, the month wasn't all out of state travel. I have been to all corners of South Carolina, from the Upstate to the Lowcountry and back. I recently enjoyed updating the Florence Rotary Club on the state of agriculture in South Carolina. That same week, I visited with attendees of the National Peanut Supervisory Conference in Myrtle Beach. I spent some time in Charleston touring the Coastal Research and Education Center, along with the U.S. Vegetable Lab, housed in the same facilities. The South Carolina agriculture industry certainly has a wide reach!

Although it was a busy month for work-related travel, the best trip I took last month was to the hospital on June 21 to welcome our new granddaughter Virginia to the Weathers

While the hours on the road can be long, the biggest reward is meeting and interacting with hard-working South Carolina farmers and others involved in the agriculture industry. Hope to see you during one of my travels soon!

Family Ag Day Returns to the State Farmers Market

Are you looking for a free, family-friendly event to attend this summer? The fourth annual Family Ag Day at the State Farmers Market will be held on Saturday, July 8 from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m.

The event is under the north Certified SC shed, where visitors can shop a variety of vendors for fresh local produce, specialty food products, and hand crafted items. The S.C. Department of Agriculture's commodity boards will be passing out free samples of their products. Enjoy a taste of local peanuts, peaches, watermelon, pork and beef, while supplies last.

Families are encouraged to celebrate agriculture while visiting the tractor exhibit, and they can learn what it's like to sit in a combine while harvesting crops in Farm Bureau's Ag

Children can enjoy an exciting kid's area that features a bouncy house. They can learn more about South Carolina agriculture through several games and crafts, and they can even get fruit and vegetable tattoos. Fun summertime tunes from a DJ will keep the atmosphere lively, and folks can grab delicious fare from food vendors.

For more information on the event, contact Elizabeth Wood at ewood@scda.sc.gov or 803-917-4950. The State Farmers Market is located at 3483 Charleston Hwy., West Columbia.
